A restartable exhibition, which it is difficult to classify, was given has object at Singary and the force of the wind that the force of the wind the same in the same to masical sers, we may be permitted to remark. At a later stage of the proceedings, the brass horu was harled forth many times in succession while the committee were yet in the act of closing the doors. Once Mr. Parker Pillabury's head had a very narrow casps. Still later, and while the Brothers wereyet securely bound, hands appeared, and were thrust through an aperture in the door of the cabinet; and twice a bare arm was thrust lorth, shades as mysterious as that which rose out of the lake (in the legend) and took King Arthur's sword. This arm and these lands may have belonged to the Davenport Brothers; but, if they did, the Davenport Brothers; but and the same and the

in the cabinet, together with the Dawenports, and the usual instrumental commotion ensued. Both gentlemen, upon emerging, stated their experience. They had been touched by hands, and the usual continues and the masical instruments had glided all about them, while, according to their bollef, the Dawisten placed in the hands of the performers, who ware again shut up; and once more the phenomena was repeated. Hands were shown at the sperture luttle door. The born was horled out. Bells were put forth and rung. A honoget was offered, and was received by one of the hands. Yet when the doors were opened, the Daven ports were found to be tied up, in precisely the same way see at first, and the flour was in their hands. We should remark that once, in the course of the exhibition, they were left unbound in the exhibition, they were left unbound in the exhibition, they were left unbound the noise made by the thrashing of ropes against the doors was distinctly heard, and were presently seem to be tied up in a periently seems way. In a word they performed leats that were saturishing, considered interely as illustrations of what is popularly known as magic. Their Dark Seance was, as its name implies, given in the dark. satonishing, considered tuerely as illustrations of what is popularly known as magic. Their Dark Seance was, as its nome implies, given no that dark. The incidents of this were equally comarkable. The same musical instruments were turnemed and banged; and, being smeared with phosphorus, were seen to fissh through the air in a particularly wild way, at the same time giving forth discordant sounds. The most remarkable incident was the taking off of Mr. Fay's coat.—Mr. Fay being the exhibitor of the Davenport Brothers, and the verbal exponent of their performance. This gentleman's coat was taken from his person, which his hands were all the verbal only wisdom in chawing a man solution of the same of the same remaining in the same position, with his bands reforence to the pretense that they are perform

The Crow's Value to the Sarmer From the Atlantic Monthly, for April. From the Attantic Monthly, for April.

Whatever wrong the crow commits against the cultivators of the soil may, by a little painstaking, be milerially leasued or wholly prevented. The benefits he confers are total numerous and important. During the time he remains with its he destroys, so says no less authority itsin Wilson, "myticals of worms, moles, miles, exterphilars, guids and herther." Auduben sites affirms that the crow devoors myrisds of guids every day of the year grabs which would lay waste the farmer's fields—and destroys quadrupeds innumerable, every one of which is an snemy to his poultry and facks. Dr. Harris also, one of the most faithful and accurate observers, in speaking of the fearful reveges sometimes wrought in our grass lands sod gardens by the grub of the May-beetles adds.
